DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

This application contains claims directed to the following patentably distinct species:

Claims 1-17 are directed to a motion picture storage unit containing the components disclosed in Figure 5.

Claims 18-33 are directed to a motion picture storage apparatus containing the components disclosed in Figure 8.

The species are independent or distinct because claims to the different species recite the mutually exclusive characteristics of such species. In addition, these species are not obvious variants of each other based on the current record.

Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 to elect a single disclosed species for prosecution on the merits to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. Currently, no claims are generic.

There is an examination and search burden for these patentably distinct species due to their mutually exclusive characteristics. The species require a different field of search (e.g., searching different classes/subclasses or electronic resources, or employing different search queries); and/or the prior art applicable to one species would not likely be applicable to another species; and/or the species are likely to raise different non-prior art issues under 35 U.S.C. 101 and/or 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph.

The Examiner further notes that claims 1-33 are further distinct as subcombinations usable together in a single combination.

Claims 1-17 further contain subcombinations usable together identified by Group I containing claims 1-4 and 16-17 (motion picture storage apparatus) and Group II containing claim 15 (motion picture distribution system located at the server side).

Claims 18-33 further contain subcombinations usable together identified by Group III containing claims 18-31 and 33 (motion picture storage apparatus using viewer history collection functionality) and Group IV containing claim 15 (viewing history investigating system located at the server side).

Inventions I-IV are related as subcombinations disclosed as usable together in a single combination. The subcombinations are distinct if they do not overlap in scope and are not obvious variants, and if it is shown that at least one subcombination is separately usable.

In the instant case, subcombination I has separate utility such as a motion picture storage apparatus with components such as a motion picture storage unit, condition storage unit and analyzing unit used to determine television program segments, acquired by a set top box, to display to a viewer. See MPEP § 806.05(d).

Subcombination II has separate utility such as an information server, storage server and distributing server used to determine what television program to transmit to the viewer's set top box. See MPEP § 806.05(d).

Subcombination III has separate utility such as a viewer history producing unit and a converting unit used to determine preferred programs to present/display to the viewer using the viewer's set top box. See MPEP § 806.05(d).

Subcombination IV has separate utility such as an information collecting device and a storage server transmitting the viewing history to the information collecting device used to determine preferred program to transmit to a viewer set top box. See MPEP § 806.05(d).

The examiner has required restriction between subcombinations usable together. Where applicant elects a subcombination and claims thereto are subsequently found allowable, any claim(s) depending from or otherwise requiring all the limitations of the allowable subcombination will be examined for patentability in accordance with 37 CFR 1.104. See MPEP § 821.04(a). Applicant is advised that if any claim presented in a continuation or divisional application is anticipated by, or includes all the limitations of, a claim that is allowable in the present application, such claim may be subject to provisional statutory and/or nonstatutory double patenting rejections over the claims of the instant application.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a species to be examined even though the requirement may be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected species, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered nonresponsive unless accompanied by an election.

The election of the species may be made with or without traverse. To preserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the election of species requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse. Traversal must be presented at the time of election in order to be considered timely. Failure to timely traverse the requirement will result in the loss of right to petition under 37 CFR 1.144. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which of these claims are readable on the elected species.

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the species unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) of the other species.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which depend from or otherwise require all the limitations of an allowable generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141.
